16. Read the extract and answer the questions :

Print culture has popularized the ideas of enlightenment thinkers. The writings of these thinkers such as Thomas Paine, Voltaire and Rousseau were widely printed and read during the times. Collectively, their writings provided a critical commentary on tradition, superstition and despotism. They argued for the rule of reason rather than custom and demanded that everything be judged through the application of reason and rationality. They attacked the sacred authority of the Church and the despotic power of the state. Thus eroding the legitimacy of a social order based on tradition. The writings of Voltaire and Rousseau were read widely : and those who read. These books saw the world through new eyes, which were critical and rational.

Questions :

- (a) Discuss in brief the effectiveness of Print Culture. 1
- (b) Do you agree that scientific ideas were circulated through print ? 2
If yes, discuss.
- (c) To what extent did the print culture has paved the way for French Revolution ? 2

By the end of 19th century, a new visual culture was taking shape. With the setting up of an increasing number of printing presses, visual images could be easily reproduced in multiple copies. Painters like Raja Ravi Verma produced images for mass circulation. Poor wood engravers who made wood blocks set up shop near letter presses and were employed by print shops.

In Punjab, too, a similar folk literature was widely printed from the early 20th century. Ram Chadda published the fast selling Istri Dharma Vichar to teach women how to be obedient wives. The Khalsa Tract Society published cheap booklets with a similar message. Many of these were in the form of dialogues about the qualities of a good woman. ✓

Questions :

- (a) Who produced images of mass circulation during 19th century ? 1
- (b) What Ram Chaddha published in 20th century and what was it about ? 2
- (c) Who published cheap booklets with a similar message ? What were these books about ? 2

Print created the possibility of wide circulation of ideas and introduced a new world of debate and discussion. Even those who disagreed with establishment authorities could now print and circulate their ideas. Through the printed message, they could persuade people to think differently and move then to action. This had significance in different spheres of life.

10th SZJDAR22—6204—X

~~B-4-X~~

The ideas of scientists and philosophers now became more accessible to the common people. Ancient and medieval scientific texts were compiled and published and maps and scientific diagrams were widely printed. When scientists like Issac Newton began to publish their discoveries, they could influence a much wider circle of scientifically minded readers. The writings of thinkers such as Thomas Paine, Voltaire and Jean Jacques Rousseau were also widely printed and read. Thus their ideas about science, reason and rationality found their way into popular literature.

Print popularised the ideas of the enlightenment thinkers. Collectively, their writings provided a critical commentary on tradition, superstition and despotism. They argued for the rule of reason rather than custom and demanded that everything be judged through the application of reason and rationality. They attacked the sacred authority of the church and the despotic power of the state, thus eroding the legitimacy of a social order based on tradition. The writings of Voltaire and Rousseau were read widely; and those who read these books saw the world through new eyes, eyes that were questioning, critical and rational.

Questions :

- (a) Evaluate the effectiveness of print in the transmission of ideas and cultures.

- (b) To what extent do you agree that scientific ideas were circulated through print ? Give only one aspect. 2
- (c) To what extent did print culture create conditions for French Revolution ? Cite any one evidence to support your answer. 2

The writings of thinkers such as Thomas Paine, Voltaire and Jean Jacques Rousseau were also widely printed and read. Thus their ideas about science, reason and rationality found their way into popular literature.

Print popularised the ideas of the enlightenment thinkers. Collectively, their writings provided a critical commentary on tradition, superstition and despotism. They argued for the rule of reason rather than custom and demanded that everything be judged through the application of reason and rationality. They attacked the sacred authority of the church and the despotic power of the state, thus eroding the legitimacy of a social order based on tradition. The writings of Voltaire and Rousseau were read widely; and those who read these, books saw the world through new eyes, eyes that were questioning, critical and rational.

Questions :

- (a) Evaluate the effectiveness of print in the transmission of ideas and cultures.

- (b) To what extent do you agree that scientific ideas were circulated through print ? Give only one aspect.
- (c) To what extent did print culture create conditions for French Revolution ? Cite any one evidence to support your answer.

Print created the possibility of wide circulation of ideas and introduced a new world of debate and discussion. Even those who disagreed with establishment authorities could now print and circulate their ideas. Through the printed message, they could persuade people to think differently and move then to action. This had significance in different spheres of life.

The ideas of scientists and philosophers now became more accessible to the common people. Ancient and medieval scientific texts were compiled and published and maps and scientific diagrams were widely printed. When scientists like Issac Newton began to publish their discoveries, they could influence a much wider circle of scientifically minded readers. The writings of thinkers such as Thomas Paine, Voltaire and Jean Jacques Rousseau were also widely printed and read. Thus their ideas about science, reason and rationality found their way into popular literature.

Print popularised the ideas of the enlightenment thinkers. Collectively, their writings provided a critical commentary on tradition, superstition and despotism. By the end of 19th century, a new visual culture was taking shape.

With the setting up of an increasing number of printing presses, visual images could be easily reproduced in multiple copies. Painters like Raja Ravi Verma produced images for 'mass' circulation. Poor wood engravers who made wood blocks set up shop near letter presses, and were employed by print shops.

In Punjab, too, a similar folk literature was widely printed from the early 20th century. Ram Chaddha published the fast-selling Istri Dharm Vichar to teach women how to be obedient wives. The Khalsa Tract Society published cheap booklets with a similar message. Many of these were in the form of dialogues about the qualities of a good woman.

Questions :

- (a) Who produced images of mass circulation during 19th century ? 1

The earliest kind of print technology was developed in China, Japan and Korea. This was a system of hand printing. From AD 594 onwards, books in China were printed by rubbing papers – also invented there – against the inked surface of woodblocks. As both sides of thin, porous sheet could not be printed, the traditional Chinese ‘accordion book’ was folded and stitched at the side.

Superbly skilled craftsmen could duplicate with remarkable accuracy, the beauty of calligraphy.

Buddhist missionaries from China introduced hand-printing technology into Japan around AD 768–770. The oldest Japanese book, printed in AD 868 is the Buddhist Diamond Sutra containing six sheets of text and woodcut illustrations. Pictures were printed on textiles, playing cards and paper money.
